PG DIPLOMA IN ENGLISH LITERATURE AND LINGUISTIC STUDIES

COURSE BROCHURE (2026-27)

INTRODUCTION

Our PG Diploma in English Literature and Linguistics Studies course is offered in an online mode to improve graduate students' understanding of literature and linguistics aspects. This program covers the cultural contexts, linguistic phenomena, interpretive methodologies, and scientific study of language. The curriculum defines interplay among language, society, and culture. Students will foster their skills with advanced research methodologies, professional practice, and analytical approach in challenging academic, professional, and global contexts. This two-semester course elucidates literary and critical theory by examining both classical and contemporary works of literature and the intricacies of linguistic theory.

MISSION:

- To encourage students to discover the literary concepts and theories of Literature and Linguistics, thereby enhancing analytical and interpretive expertise.
- To make them develop a deeper understanding of literature and prepare a portfolio of published research papers to grab opportunities in the writing field.

OBJECTIVES:

- To make students adapt to different work cultures and understand pre- and post-World War functional areas and sociolinguistic aspects to build strong communication and analytical skills.
- To foster students' research proficiency for scholarly research and knowledge of global languages, and promote global and cultural awareness of language and identities.
